

Build a clear prompt

Activity · Prompting techniques · ~15 min

Before you start

- ☐ You're signed in to the FASTR platform with the AI Assistant available
- ☐ You have a real workshop task in mind that you'd normally do (a chart, a summary, a slide for a meeting)

Why this matters

A clear prompt produces a useful answer. A vague prompt produces a generic one. The difference is what you put in the prompt — not how powerful the model is. Most of the value comes from a 30-second pre-flight before you start typing.

Four questions before you type

Pick a task you do regularly. Before writing the prompt, answer these four questions:

Question	Your answer
1. What do I need? A chart? A summary? A slide for a meeting?
2. Who is it for? My director? A donor? My country team?
3. What should it cover? Which indicators? Which regions? What time period?
4. What does a good result look like? Would I recognise it if the AI got it wrong?

Now write your prompt

Use your answers above to write a prompt that names what, who, scope, and success criterion. One paragraph is fine.

Your prompt: _____

Tips

Refining is normal. You don't have to get the prompt right in one go — you can keep talking to the AI to narrow it down. The four questions above just give you a stronger first message.
